

TAYLOR BARUCHEL

Acting

A veteran of the film and television industry since the age of 9, young Taylor Baruchel is already considered a seasoned, well rounded performer. Her body of work includes appearances in such films as Who Gets the House?, Prom Wars and Let the Game Begin with Adam Rodriguez as well as appearing in the highly charged Canadian docudrama The Point. In addition to multiple radio and television commercials, Taylor has numerous original voice and dubbing roles to her credit including such animated series as Fred's Head and Sagwa and the live action series Never Ending Story, A Heartbeat Away and L'Or. Known locally for her love of musical theater and impressive singing talent, Taylor was recently asked to co-host Le Spotlight, Montreal's first Musical Theatre Challenge.

Taylor is a recent graduate of The Dome, Dawson College's respected Professional Theatre Program and continues to study her craft at the prestigious Prince Edward Island Conservatory with renown musical theatre director Duncan McIntosh and Boko Suzuki, acclaimed musical director and current conductor of Wicked. When Taylor is not performing, she lends her considerable talents to the Theatre department at Royal West Academy as Acting Specialist and takes great pleasure in helping other young aspiring actors achieve their dreams.
